

BOTH HANGED IN EFFIGY.

Hostile Demonstrations of Workmen— Boilermakers' Strike Ended—Men Go to Work Today.

HOMESTEAD, Penn., June 29.—The intense feeling of the workmen at the Homestead steel works has at last broke forth. Today there were numerous hostile and exciting demonstrations.

H. C. Frick, William McBroow and several others were hanged in effigies in the mill yard on the electric light poles.

When James Dinkey, chief of the electric lamp, climbed the poles to pull down the effigy of Mr. Frick, the workmen turned the hose that has been prepared as a defence for the plant upon him and caused the gentleman to beat a hasty retreat.

Another figure was cut down by a Hungarian laborer. As he carried the figure through the yard he was met with hoots and jeers on every side.

William McBroow, who was also hung in effigy, is chief of the steel works police.

The only grievance against him is his position.

A number of strange men who, it was feared, were here to take the places of the Amalgamated men, were compelled to leave town.

The closing down of the 32-inch mills will be followed by 119-inch mill tonight. Several other departments will close down tonight, and the men will be discharged.

Instead of a strike it will be a lock-out.

The situation has only become more serious.

CONFERENCE WAS FRUITLESS.

Iron and Steel Manufacturers and Em- ployes Cannot Agree.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 29.—The second conference between the Amalgamated Association wage committee and the iron and sheet steel manufacturers was fruitless, and adjourned at 4 o'clock this morning.

The squaring shear question, on which they cannot agree, was referred back to the convention. The Amalgamated Association's ultimatum is that one-fifth be the rate on squaring shears in jobbing mills and one-seventh in regular sheet mills.

The Amalgamated wage committee will hold a conference with the Shenango and Mahoning valley iron manufacturers at Youngstown tomorrow. A disagreement is anticipated. It is now thought that there will be a general shut down in all branches of the iron business.

The 17th annual convention of the Amalgamated Association adjourned at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Tomorrow, midnight, the Western iron and steel scales of '91-'92 will cease to be in existence, and all mills desiring to continue at work can only do so under the scales of '92-'93.

ONE STRIKE ENDED.

Boilermakers to Return to Work This Morning.

The strike of the boilermakers of Boston is ended. Through the efforts of the State board of arbitration A. E. Cox, president of the Boiler Manufacturers' Association, Harrison Loring, Duncan Russell, H. S. Robertson and George E. Miles, representing the manufacturers, and P. Jackson Murray, R. McDonnell, Thomas C. Flannagan, John Ross and William Splane, representing the striking boilermakers, met at 13 Beacon st. yesterday afternoon.

It was finally decided, upon a suggestion from the State board of arbitration, that 58 hours should constitute a week's work, and that the compensation for said hours of work should be the same as that formerly received for 60 hours.

About 3 o'clock the committee from the employes reported back to the union the result of the conference with the manufacturers, and the terms agreed upon by the committee were accepted.

The men returned to work this morning.

MALDEN LABORERS ORGANIZE.

Objections Raised to Manner of Enforc- ing Nine-Hour Law.

MALDEN, Mass., June 29.—A mass meeting of laborers was held in Bailey's Hall tonight, and a branch of the Knights of Labor was formed.

Two months ago Alderman Dinneon introduced an order in the city council instructing the heads of departments to conform to the nine-hour law. The street commissioners complied, and in so doing reduced the laborers' pay from $2 to $1.75 per day. These, however, worked by the hour and not by the day, and their efforts to secure $2 a day for nine hours were refused by the commissioners. The latter finally agreed to allow the men to work 10 hours for that sum. This did not prove satisfactory to the men; hence tonight's meeting.

Timothy Mahoney presided at the meeting, which was addressed by Organizer William Burke of Marlboro, Master Workman Canning of Boston, Councilman Roberts of this city, and others.
